

Thorbjørn Jagland
Secretary General
Council of Europe

REGARDING DRUG POLICY AND HUMAN RIGHTS.

As a defender of human rights and a believer in evidence based drug policies I find it highly unfortunate that the European Court of Human Rights now, with case no. 67078/10, has denied the people of Europe a defence against the drug laws.

There is mounting evidence everywhere these days that these laws violate basic human rights (see free.roarmikalsen.info).

Despite this fact our public officials will not look at the evidence and so it is of great importance that the Court looks into the matter.

I therefore ask the Secretary General to take proper measures and see to it that the Court gives the legalization argument a fair hearing in an independent, impartial and competent Court, as the people of Europe are entitled to.

Yours sincerely,
